This Inmate's case was referred to the Federal Bureau of Prisons' Certification Review Panel to determine the applicability of civil commitment provisions established under 18 U.S.C. Section 4248. Based on a review of all available information concerning this inmate, the Panel determined that the inmate does not meet the definitional criteria of a Sexually Dangerous Person. This documentation should be printed and retained in Section 5 of the inmate's Central File as well as incorporated into the inmate's Progress Report (BP-A187.058).

Inmate Francis was NOT certified by the Certification Review Branch. The psychologists recd certification, but the review by DOJ attorneys resulted in him not being certified. He is a higher risk, and repetitive offense sex offender. I would recommend minimal RRC time.

DEFENDANT CANNOT FIND OUT THAT HIS FORMER GIRLFRIEND/ROOMMATE IS PROVIDING US INFORMATION. THIS IS THE BEST SOURCE OF INFO THAT WE HAVE AT THIS TIME. IF FOR SOME REASON THIS DISCLOSURE NEEDS TO BE MADE THEN PLEASE CONTACT ME FIRST!

On October 14, 2009, Sean Francis former roommate/girlfriend provided me with 7 letters that she has received from the defendant while he has been in custody. The first letter was apparently written right after he was arrested on our TSR violation. Some of the letters are dated and some are not. I've pulled out some important parts that I want you to be aware of and they are listed below exactly as they were written.

"My attitude towards Probation is going to be alot different once I get out though. I used to want to make them Proud of me. I thought they really cared about me. Now I know better, its me vs. them. Some things are going to change when I come home. I no longer care about following there rules. If we want to go to kings island (officer's note-king island is an amusement park in southern ohio), Louisville, or to see my family in New York were just going to go. Also my computer will be kept at a friends house. There not going to take it for 2 months, and what you and I do on the computer is none of there damn business. Fuck Probation!"

"I've been thinking about something and want to talk to you about it. Im not very happy at all about being on Probation when I get home. I feel like they will look for any reason to fuck w/me and at some point ill be violated again for bullshit. Im giving alot of thought to leaving Kentucky once I get home and blowing off Probation. At some point I will get caught and have to face the judge and do a little time. However unless I was to break the law or get pulled over I most likely could stay out for a year or two, possibly more. The point is Im not interested in going home and having to be paranoid again. Have my life watched by them and fucked w/ by them. I want to live my life on my terms."

"Im not looking forward to Probation when I get out. I really want to just tell them to fuck off. I dont expect to finish 12 months of Probation."

Any updates on the situation that you can provide would be great. Please just let me know that you received this email as I do believe it's important information. Looking at his self admitted history, his previous performance on supervised release, his current plan for his next term of supervised release, and his test scores on the various risk prediction exams, I don't see how your office could draw any conclusion other than civil commitment.

Thanks for your time and consideration in this matter, If you need copies of all of the letters let me know and I'll try and scan them in and email them to you.
